OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Bill intends to provide for an enactment of the e-Government Act, 2019 with a view to establishing e-Government Authority which shall be a body corporate mandated to coordinate, oversee and promote e-Government initiatives and enforcement of e-Government related policies, laws, regulations, standards and guidelines in public institutions and other matters connected thereto.

The Bill is divided into XI Parts.

Part I contains preliminary provisions which include short title, commencement date, application and interpretation of various terms and phrases used in the Bill.

Part II contains provisions relating to the establishment of the e-Government Authority, objectives of the Authority, powers and functions of the Authority.

Part III provides for the administration provisions. It covers provisions relating to the establishment and functions of the Board, powers of the Board to appoint committees, observance of impartiality and matters relating to conflict of interest. Some of the Board's functions are to provide strategic guidance, formulate policies for the operation and management of the Authority, and approve work plan, annual budget and reports. Further, the Board is expected to conduct general oversight, secure and ensure efficient use of resources. The Chairman of the Board will be appointed by the President whereas Board members will be appointed by the Minister. Furthermore, the Part contains provisions relating to the appointment of the Director General and employees of the Authority.

Part IV provides for the management and operations of e-Government. It proposes to establish various committees that will facilitate management and operations of e-Government. Such committees include the National e-Government Steering Committees, e-Government Technical Committee and Institutional ICT Steering Committee. The committees will be key organs for providing guidance, technical and institutional support for the Authority.

Part V sets up e-Government Infrastructure and systems. The provisions intend to ensure that all public institutions use approved infrastructure and systems for efficient and effective communication within the Government. In order to achieve this, Part V specifies basic requirements and standards of infrastructure and systems that a public institution should put in place to facilitate smooth and efficient e-Government services.

Part VI contains provisions relating to e-Government services. It empowers the Minister to prescribe guidelines that sets out conditions for acceptability of electronic transactions which is a key component for delivery of efficient and effective e-Government services. Further to that, Part VI sets out basic standards for which every public institution should abide to for proper delivery of e-Government services. Such standards include putting in place business processes and systems that will ensure availability and reliability of e-Government services to the public.

Part VII contains provision relating to e-Government security. It contains provisions for establishment of Government security operation center, ICT security governance and management. The Part further provides for ICT security operations, security of ICT assets, identity and access management, ICT security incident management, information systems continuity management, information systems acquisition, development and maintenance, human resources security, physical and environmental security and ICT security compliance and audit.

Part VIII contains provisions relating to Electronic Data Management considering data as an asset, creation of data and its access and availability, data sharing and integration, data ownership and data standards.

Part IX provides for financial provisions. It contains provisions relating to funds of the Authority, application of revenue, financial year, budget, accounts and audit and annual report. The Authority is required to prepare annual report for each financial year and submit it to the Minister who shall lay the report before the National Assembly.

Part X contains general provisions which include compliance orders, power to make rules and declarations, general penalty, compounding of offences and power to make regulations.

Part XI of the Bill proposes for consequential amendments to the Electronic Transaction Act, Cap. 442 for purpose of aligning it with the provisions of the new Act.
